DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

Applicant's election with traverse of Species I, claims 32-33 corresponding to Figures 1A-2 in the reply filed on 2/8/2008 is acknowledged. The traversal is on the ground(s) that the essence of all of the claims is a single invention of which all of the claims are part and parcel of the application. This is not found persuasive because the figures clearly show numerous wholly different installation mechanisms (locking elements).

The requirement is still deemed proper and is therefore made FINAL.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

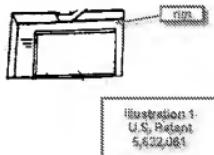

Claims 32-33 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Smith et al. (U.S. Patent 5,632,061, "Smith") in view of Adams et al. (U.S. Patent 5,991,976, "Adams").

Regarding Claim 32, Smith discloses: Reference figures 1-3, for example

(Original) A handle (Abstract) comprising: at least one [...] which can be mounted in an opening (12) (14, 15) in a thin wall (14) (22) such as a sheet-metal cabinet door; a head part (28) (12), such as a flange or olive- shaped handle, which overlaps the rim (24) (See Illustration 1 below) of the opening (12) (14, 15) of the thin wall (14) (22) on its outer side; a body part (30) (39) which proceeds from the head part (28)

Art Unit: 4155

(12) and can be pushed through the opening (12) (14, 15) in the thin wall (14) (22); a holding part (34) (32) which is carried by the body part (30) (39'), supported on the other side (32) (25) of the thin wall (14) (22), and is separate from the body part (30) (39'); and said holding part (34) (32) being formed by holding elements (36) (31) which project in a flexible manner from the body part (30) (39') in the direction of its outer surface and whose free end has an inclined surface (38) (33) for supporting the body part (30) (39') on the rim (24) (See Illustration 1 below) or edge (40) (13) of the opening (12) (14, 15) without play.

Smith discloses a handle but does not disclose a holding plate.

Adams teaches:

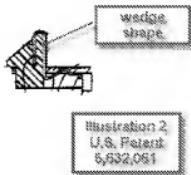

Reference figure 6, for example

... holding plate (16) (54) ...

Examiner notes that Smith discloses a handle. Adams teaches the use of a holding plate. A holding plate provides a secure means for holding locking elements in place. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to modify Smith with a holding plate as taught by Adams to provide a secure means for holding the locking elements in place thereby avoiding shifting or play in the handle.

Regarding Claim 33, Smith further discloses:

(Original) The handle according to claim 32, wherein two holding elements (36-1, 36-2) (30, 32) which are arranged diametrical to one another are provided and are acted upon by pressure elements or two coil springs (42-1, 42-2) (40), or wedge arrangements (56) (See Illustration 2 below) such as conical screws.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
